our of the nationalists. It was capalised that negotiations wild have no useful outcome long as the Wafd remained a position either to refuse reliamentary sanction to an present, or to give its present, or to give its present, or to give its present. to popular nationalistic otest. Observers claimed that ahas Pashu's public prestige of gone up, not down, as a suit of his dismissal by the lag, and that he was only king, and that he was only waiting for a suitable oppor-traity to pounce. The Anglo-Egyptian talks could not have littled to give him that oppor-tually, which he seemed ready of take in collaboration with the so-called "Left" movements a the country. As matters now thand it is useless to guess at the prospects; but not irra-ional to fear a worsening of the conflict between Britain and tarpe.
